Wallabout Market Photographs, 3/7/1941 - 3/28/1941 (National Archives Identifier 148030515)

This series contains photographs of Wallabout Market in Brooklyn, New York. The market was situated on the eastern edge of the New York Navy Yard from the 1880's until June 1941. Designed by the architect William B. Tubby, the market became one of the largest in the world. As the United States began to take an active part in World War II, the Navy Yard reclaimed the Wallabout space to expand. These photographs were taken a few months before the market was closed.
